

Strike solidarity – get involved

UCU branches in universities across the country have called 18 days of strikes in February and March 2023. We are fighting for pay we can live on and a decent pension, against casualisation and to reduce the inequality and discrimination which has created race and gender pay and pension gaps. We want a Higher Education system which is fit for purpose with enough public funding to ensure it is accessible to all. We know we can't win this fight on our own. We need the support not only of all our members, but also of the wider trade union movement and community. We want to link together with strikers in other unions and campaigns against cuts in public services to build a solidarity movement together.

Please leave your details if you'd like us to contact you about our upcoming strikes and public events.

| Name | Union | Workplace | Phone number | Email | What do you want to do to help? |
|------|-------|-----------|--------------|-------|---------------------------------|
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |
| | | | | | |

Names and details will be kept by Cambridge UCU. We may share your details with other local unions for the purposes of solidarity organising.